DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 2/29/08 has been entered.
2. This application has been examined. The claims 44-45, 47-81, 84, 86-104, 106-108 are pending. The examination results are as following.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 104 and 107-108 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Lieberman et al. (US 6,385,463).

As to claim 104, Lieberman teaches a handheld dual mode device operable by a user and capable of voice communication (first mode) and data communication (second mode), the dual-mode comprising a device comprising an integrated device housing having a single, continuous front surface within which are mounted(fig. 3), and through which extend, a display and one, complete-alphanumeric keyboard laid out in the QWERTY style (126, alphanumeric keys (see figs 1,3, col. 3,lines 29-65; col. 4,lines 34-38 and col. 5, lines 16-32), said keyboard being located below the display, said front surface including therein a speaker (118) above the display and a microphone (116, fig. 1) that is an inherent located below the complete, alphanumeric QWERTY- style keyboard, said housing also having a longer dimension and shorter dimension, the longer dimension defining a major axis.

As to claim 107, Lieberman et al. teach a speaker (118), mounted above the display (120, fig. 3).

As to claim 108, Lieberman et al. disclose a microphone mounted at the front surface of the device, permitting use by the user pursuant to the voice communication (first mode) and the data communication (second mode) while maintaining the device housing in a common orientation (see figure 3, col. 5, lines 15-31).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 106 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lieberman et al. (US 6,385,463) in view of Lichtenberg (US 5,336,001).

Lieberman fail to disclose the keys configured along a concave arc across the front surface of the device housing and the QWERTY keyboard having three rows of keys.

Lichtenberg teaches a QWERTY keyboard having three rows of keys and the keys configured along a concave arc across the front surface of the device (see figures 4-6; column 1, lines 10-26; column 5, lines 40-68 and column 6, lines 1-30).

It would have been obvious to have to have the three rows of keys and the keys configured along a concave arc across the front surface of the device as taught by Lichtenberg into the handheld dual mode mobile communication of Lieberman for producing the claimed invention because this would provide to maximizes the operator's comfort and increase the operator's speed and efficiency (see col. 2, lines 24-41).

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 44-45, 47-81, 84, 86-103 are allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: None of the cited art teaches or suggests that the apparatus for a dual mode mobile communication device comprising the first dimension defining a major axis extending between a top side surface and a bottom side surface of the housing, the second dimension defining a minor axis between a left side surface and a right side surface, said top side surface and said bottom side surface being substantially parallel to each other and substantially orthogonal to said continuous single front surface and to the left and right side surfaces, said housing also having a single rear surface as claim 44.
